

COED AWAKES TO SEE STRANGE MAN SITTING IN CHAIR STARING AT HER. HE RAN FROM ROOM WHEN SHE SCREAMED, BUT HE WAS NOT SEEN BY ANYONE ELSE. 640

These were things that did happen at one of the sorority houses at Indiana University, but since then I have heard a story about one of the incidences. Perhaps this the beginning of a new mystery story that will grow and change over the years.

True happening:

A girl was sleeping in her room and she woke up to see a man in her room, she screamed and he ran out, but they caught him.

strange man in room

The story I heard about a month after this had happened follows:

"Did you hear about one of the houses down here? This really happened too. Some girl was lying in bed and she felt like someone was watching her, but she was afraid to look around the room. Finally, she turned over, but she didn't open her eyes.
She laid there for a while and she knew she heard breathing so she opened her eye just a little bit and there was some man sitting in a chair just staring at her. All of a sudden she sat up and screamed, 'Get out of here, get out- -' He ran out of the room, but no one ever saw him, and when she got up just a few seconds after he had left there was no sign of him in the halls. And no one could figure out how he got in or out."

7 [The other incident that could develop into a new tale is this:
A girl was studying in her room and she went out to get a coke, when she came back the screen in her room had been slashed.

Perhaps all it takes is just a few incidences like these to foster new tales of suspense.
