Two twin sisters lived in Smithwood during vacation and went to a show downtown. On the way back it was late and dark, and they saw a man with a hatchet. Each had her own room since they decided not to live together. They both ran into the dorm into their own separate rooms. One girl barely got in the door, and she moved her dresser to the door to keep the man out. She could not get hold of anyone at all. She heard scratching at the door, thinking it was the man. She finally got someone to come over to the room. When she opened the door her sister was dead. An hatchet was in her back.
